It appears that you correctly used the Pythagorean Theorem to find e, but you then found the value of $\cot D$. Remember that the two acute angles in a right triangle will have different trigonometric ratios. The correct answer is $\dfrac{4}{\sqrt{65}}$.