If you shift the graph of $y = \sin \theta$ by $\dfrac{\pi}{2}$ units to the left, the hill that had been positioned over the interval $[0, \pi]$ will now have the y-axis running through the center. This is also true of the given graph. The rest of the graph will consist of the repeating valley and hill pattern, matching the given graph.