

The triangles are similar because corresponding sides are proportional and they are congruent because corresponding angles are equal.