

Correct. If you rearrange both equations to solve for y , you will see that the two equations have the same slope and the same y -intercepts; therefore they are the same line, and the system will have infinitely many solutions.