

Correct. Use the formula $d = rt$ to represent both legs of the journey. Her outgoing trip can be represented by $d = r \cdot 1$, and her incoming trip can be represented by $d = (r - 3)(1.5)$, since her rate was 3 mph slower on the return trip.