

Correct. Use the formula  $d = rt$  to represent both legs of the journey. Her outgoing trip can be represented by  $d = r \cdot 1$ , and her incoming trip can be represented by  $d = (r + 4)(0.75)$ , since her rate was 4 mph faster on the return trip.