

Correct. No points are valid solutions to the system because no point causes both inequalities to be true at the same time. The solution is "None".