The area of a square is s^2 square inches, where s is the length (in inches) of each side of the square. Determine the side length (in inches) of a square having an area of 50 square inches. Express your answer in radical form.