

It looks like you added the hours that it would take each machine to paint a single car. If they work together, then their combined rate will be less than either of their individual rates. Write each rate as cars painted per hour.