

It look like you selected the average of the times that it takes the machines to paint a single car. If they work together, then their combined rate will be less than either of their individual rates. Write each rate as cars painted per hour.