

Correct. Substituting values in for x , you find that x can be an integer, whole number, or natural number and still satisfy the description that $-\frac{1}{2} \cdot x$ yields an integer. When $x = 6$ (a whole number, natural number, and an integer), $-\frac{1}{2} \cdot 6 = -3$, which is an integer.