

You are given the following information about a system of two linear equations:

"The graph of one equation goes through the origin. The equations have different slopes."

From this information only, what can you deduce about the system?