

Remember that deductive reasoning is the process of using logic and mathematical rules to construct new knowledge. Try representing the information in algebraic form, and then think about what you can deduce.