

Correct. The table of previous results offer some data that can be used to predict the result of the next flip, but you can't start from the facts in this table and create more known facts, which is the key to deductive reasoning.