

Correct. To identify the next number in the sequence, you need to make an observation, generalize, and then form a conjecture. These are all parts of inductive reasoning.