In general, adding 1 to the numerator and denominator does not create an equivalent fraction. When you rewrite both fractions with a common denominator, 42, the numerators are different, so the two fractions are not equivalent.