

The difference between consecutive outputs is not constant, so the function can not be linear.