

Incorrect. Remember to change each mixed number into a fraction, then multiply the first fraction by the reciprocal of the second fraction. You can reorder the numerators before multiplying to see a fraction that has a common factor.