

Correct. The Addition Property of Equality says that you can add the same amount to both sides of an equation and the equation will remain balanced.