

You need to convert one temperature so that both temperatures are on the same scale before subtracting.