You may have thought that adding 0 to other numbers changes the total value to 0. The identity property states that adding 0 to other numbers does not change their value. The correct answer is -3.