

This point represents -3 . This is not the correct point, because this is not the value of x . Remember that absolute value is never negative. After you find the correct value of x , you need to find where that number is plotted on the number line.