This point represents -4. This is not the correct point, because this is not the value of x. Remember that absolute value is never negative. After you find the correct value of x, you need to find where that number is plotted on the number line.