

Incorrect. Multiply the absolute values of the factors. Then find the correct sign. A negative number multiplied by a negative number is positive, and a negative number multiplied by a positive number is negative.