

A rational number could be nonterminating as long as the pattern repeats. However, a rational number could be a whole number, since a whole number could always be rewritten as a ratio of itself over 1. The correct answer is B and C.