

Both statements are false. Irrational numbers are nonrepeating, nonterminating decimals. Also, a rational number could be a whole number, since a whole number could always be rewritten as a ratio of itself over 1. The correct answer is B and C.