This is a common factor, but not the greatest common factor. To find the GCF of 108 and 144, find their prime factorizations. Count how many times they have the prime factor 2 in common. The GCF should have that many. Then do the same thing for the prime factor 3.