

Correct. The identity property of 1 states that $x(1) = x$ and $(1)x = x$. If you multiply a number by something other than 1, you do not get back the same number.