The coefficient is the numerical factor of the term. The exponent is the power that the variable is raised to. Remember also that if a variable has no exponent, that is the same as having an exponent of 1.