

You are probably thinking that dividing by 2 will help to isolate the variable d , but this will not be the result if it is your first step. That would work if you had $2d$ alone on the left side.