You may have been trying to simplify by combining constants. However, you must add or subtract the same number to every part of the inequality. You also need to figure out which operation will help you isolate the variable term, $2x$.