To rewrite any equation, you must follow the same rules that you learned earlier. For example, multiply both sides by the same number or divide both sides by the same number. You cannot multiply the left side of $A = L \cdot W$ by L while dividing the right side by L. Instead, divide both sides by L.