

Incorrect. To solve for any variable, you must follow the same rules that you learned earlier for solving equations. For example, multiply both sides by the same number or divide both sides by the same number.