First, you may have made a mistake when attempting to clear the decimals. You need to multiply both sides of the equation by 100 to do this, and apply the distributive property. Make sure that you move the decimal point in each number two places to the right. Second, you may have made a mistake with a sign when trying to isolate the variable term. The correct answer is $x = -6$.