

Incorrect. To solve for any variable, you must follow the same rules that you learned earlier for solving equations. Add the same number to both sides, subtract the same number from both sides, multiply both sides by the same number, or divide both sides by the same number.