

You divided the coefficients correctly, but you made a mistake with the exponents. Because the a in the denominator did not have an exponent, you may have thought that you did not need to subtract anything. However, when there is no exponent, that is the same as an exponent of 1.