Begin at the origin and move two units in the positive direction (right) along the x-axis. Then move three units up (in a positive direction). Point S is located there.