If you solve a system and end up with the equations $x = 0$ and $y = 1$, then that would mean the solution is (0, 1). For this system, both equations being true would imply that $0 = 1$. But this is false, which means that you cannot find numbers that make both equations true.