This is one solution to the system, but not the only one. If you substitute $1 - 5x$ for y in the first equation and then simplify, you will end up with the equation $10x = 10x$. This equation is true regardless of the value of x. The correct answer is that there are an infinite number of solutions.