

Roberta took two tests. She scored 10 points more on the second test. Her average score for the two tests was 75 points. If x = her score on the first test, and y = her score on the second test, then the average is given by the formula $\frac{x + y}{2}$. What did she score on the second test?

She scored _____ points on the second test.