

You may have correctly graphed the boundary lines but incorrectly shaded the regions. To determine the correct shading, test points on either side of each line to see which one makes the inequality true.