If you had a system leading to an equation such as $0 = 0$, which is true regardless of the value of x or y, then the system would have an infinite number of solutions. If you multiply the first equation by 2 and add it to the second equation, you will eliminate both variables but end up with a different type of equation.