

A student is given a system with two equations and two variables. While solving by substitution, he ends up with the equation $x = x$. The student did not make any mistakes. What does this mean?