

Incorrect. If, while solving the system, you end up with an impossible equation, such as $0 = 1$, then the system has no solution. If you end up with an equation that is always true, such as $x = x$, then there are an infinite number of solutions.