

If you solve a system and end up with the equations $x = 10$ and $y = 11$, then the solution is $(10, 11)$. Here, if you substitute $2x + 5$ for y in the second equation and then simplify, you will end up with the equation $10 = 11$, which means something very different. Since this is false, you cannot find numbers that make both equations true.