

You reversed the x -value and the y -value when substituting into both equations. In an ordered pair the first number is substituted in for x and the second number is substituted in for y .