

The length of one rectangle is five times the length of another. The total of the two lengths is 360 inches. Using x and y as the two lengths, which system of equations could be used to solve this problem?