

The system has two variables and it has two linear equations, but it is not possible for a system like this to have exactly two solutions. A solution corresponds to a point that the lines have in common. Since two points determine a line, if the graphs shared two points they would be the same line. So they would have every point in common, as these two equations do.