

In an inverse relationship, as one variable increases, the other decreases. In this equation, as x increases y also increases. This is a direct variation.