

Use the given type of variation and the values for the independent variable x and the dependent variable y to find the value of k , the constant of variation.